Protection of the Red-Footed Falcon, Bulgaria

Organisation – The Bulgarian Society for the Protection of Birds(BSPB) works for the conservation of wild birds, sites and habitats important to their survival and for biodiversity as a whole. Amongst other things, BSPB:

- Works with and for people at a local and regional level
- Raises awareness about birds and fosters passion for nature and conservation
- Welcomes members from all sectors of society and involves them through practical conservation, education and public awareness work
- Contributes to internationally agreed conservation priorities

Project - To continue the BSPB's work for the Red-Footed Falcon which has suffered drastic declines in Bulgaria over the past decade. Colleagues in Hungary have stabilised and reversed the falling population, and projections show that this larger population will expand its range into Romania and Bulgaria. The project will take place in 3 regions of Bulgaria and will involve:

- Construction and installation of specially designed nest boxes
- Monitoring of nest box colonies and breeding success
- Public awareness and media campaign to change attitudes and behaviour that harms the Red-Footed Falcon
